A NATURAL BRIDGE.

An Interesting Natural Curiosity of the Teuto Basin.

[Prescott Journal.]

There is a natural curiosity in the shape of a bridge, erected by Nature's hand, over Pine creek, in the Tonto Basin country, for a description of which the Journal is indebted to Mr. Stewart Daniels. He writes: The bridge is owned by David Gowan, and is one of the grandest sights I have ever seen. It is 600 feet in width; from the bottom of the arch to the top it is an average of 40 feet; span 175 feet in length; lower side of arch 150 feet. On the east side of the canon, and about 200 yards above, is the residence of the owner, who takes pleasure in showing visitors the bridge and its numerous caverns. In all of the latter are splendid stalactites, stalagmites, petrifactions of all kinds of vegetable matter, such as branches, moss, etc., besides bones of animals and human beings. Those which are in damp places are turned to stone; others are still in their natural state. All the caves so far explored show by the pottery found that they have been the habitstions of two races of Indians. In one of the caves we discovered a cache, in which we found ollas filled with corn and mesquite beans. In another was the figure, in stalactite, of a beautiful woman, which some artist had adorned with chignon, bangs, etc. mountains, June 21, W R Gleason, Wm Lady Gowan, and would continue to ob-Mr. Gowan said she was called

The bridge, I believe, has been formed by the water from two large springs, which rise about 20 feet above the level of the bridge, and which the owner uses for irrigating purposes. They furnish about 100 inches of water, which is about 95 degrees Fahrepheit, and will take no effect on any

Wm. McGough.

Wm. McGough, last heard of in Tucson, will learn something greatly to his advantage by calling on postmaster M. P. Freeman, or addressing his mother, Mrs. Martha McGough, Eastward, Eastland county, Texas.

Silver Lake certainly improves by contrast with the scene of dust and heat of the city. The cool and inviting shades; the soft music of the falling waters, and the sweet songs of the myriads of birds in the cottonwoods all combine to charm the visitor. Besides these attractions the bathing just now is a luxury, and the beat riding-just think of boat riding in this "desert" land! The new hotel affords all needed accommodations, and nothing is wanting to add to the pleasures of the grave and gay, the weak and strong, the old and young or the rich and poor.
